Waterworks Reserve

SITE AND BOOKING INFORMATION

First constructed in the 1860s, the Waterworks reservoirs capture the flow of creeks and rivers rising on the higher slopes of kunanyi/ Mt Wellington. Flowing via a network of stone and timber troughs and channels, the gathered waters arrived at the Receiving House, where today, an informative display explains the history of this important and historic site.

The tree-shaded lawns and children's play areas of the Waterworks Reserve are popular for picnics and barbecues. A network of walking tracks wind around the reservoirs and up into the bushland of Ridgeway towards the water's mountain source.
